Around school this week

Writing in Jubbergate

In their writing this week, Jubbergate have been adding hair, using patterns to develop our fine motor skills and pencil control!

Communication through the ages

This half term Fishergate have loved exploring how communication has changed over the years. The children experienced writing and sending letters, made cup phones, wrote messages using Morse Code and compared equipment from the past and the present.

Our Senses

Nursery have continued to learn about their five senses this week, putting their taste buds and listening skills to the test. Tasting foods that were sweet, sour, and spicy and identifying sounds on our listening walk.

Science

In Science, Year 5 have been following in the footsteps of Charles Darwin by exploring evolution and recreating how different food sources drive adaptations.

New school library!

In Summer we were lucky enough to have Mrs Benniston in school to paint some beautiful murals for our new library!

After stocking it with new books, some donated by you, furnishing it and making it look fantastic, this week it was introduced to the children.

Each class have been given a slot to spend some time in our exciting new space. Here are the children enjoying it this week!

Friends of Haxby Road!

FoHR are a small team of volunteers who come together to raise funds for the school and put on events for the school community. If you're interested in finding out more or would like to volunteer, please join the Facebook group or chat to one of the teachers and they can point you in our direction. We're always keen for more people to help and more ideas to support the children of Haxby Road!
